

The Consultant and the Heritage cycle

- The consultants input to enable understanding by visitors and contractors is essential.
- Co-ordination and communication with interested parties is intrinsic to the success of a piece of work.

“Working as a team with all parties, enables decisions to be formulated in a logical fashion, thereby providing the most suitable solution. Believing in a teamwork approach to all projects increases the likelihood of people working with the decision under a sense of ownership” (Ref Clark, K. 2001)

Forsyth, M.2007. Understanding historic building conservation